

It is intended to make the SHENLEY SENTINEL a first-class Family Newspaper, Democratic in politics, devoted to General News, Literature, and Morality. The assistance and co-operation of the people of Shelby and adjoining counties. While the local interests of this section will not be neglected, we will aim to advance the general prosperity of the State. The general interests and welfare of this section can in no better way be advanced than through the medium of a newspaper.

Dismissing our attention to the topics of the day, we will freely and independently discuss them. A cordial support will be given to Democratic and Conservative principles, in opposition to the revolutionary measures of Radicalism. Believing that this is the only course which will result in permanent prosperity to the country and that these views are shared by the people of Kentucky, naturally and heartily endorsing, we shall uphold and defend them at all times. Firm in the opinion that we can make our paper acceptable, we ask a liberal patronage. Correspondence upon all subjects is respectfully invited. All communications must be accompanied by the name of the writer, not for publication, unless desired, but as a guarantee of good faith and responsibility. Communications to insure favorable attention should be sent to the point, and plainly written upon both sides of the paper. Rejected communications cannot be returned. 27 Announcements of Marriages and Deaths published gratis. 27 Obituaries, Tributes of Respect, etc., will be charged 50 cents for each line, the money to accompany the manuscript. 27 Parties ordering us to advertise for them in other papers must advance the amount requisite to pay for such advertisement. 27 Advertisements under the "Special Notice" head will be charged 50 cents per line, additional to the above rates. 27 All transient advertisements, and all advertisements from a distance, must be paid for in advance. 27 Yearly advertisers have the privilege of altering their advertisements quarterly. More frequent changes must be contracted for, otherwise they will be charged 20 cents per square for each change. Collection will be made quarterly.

Selected Poetry

DARLING, TELL ME YES.

BY JOHN G. SAGE.

One little moment more, Maud,
One little moment more;
I have you to speak, Maud,
I never breathe before.

What can it be but love, Maud?
And do I lightly guess,
Tis pleasant to your ear, Maud,
O, darling, tell me yes.

The burden of my heart, Maud,
And did I tell you yes,
There's little need to say, Maud,
I've loved you long and well.

There's language in my sigh, Maud,
One's meaning is express;
And yours was it for me, Maud?
O, darling, tell me yes.

My eyes have told my love, Maud,
And on my burning cheek,
You've read the tender thought, Maud;
My lips refused to speak.

I gave you all my heart, Maud,
Tis needless to confess;
And did I tell you yes, Maud?
O, darling, tell me yes.

Tis and to share a love, Maud,
So worshipful and true,
I know a little love, Maud,
Quite large enough for two.

And you will be my love, Maud,
So you may ever love,
Through all your sunny life, Maud,
The day you answered yes.

A Beautiful Story.

It was a warm afternoon; a lazy breeze stole through the windows of a little hot district school house, lifting the white curtains, and rustling the leaves of the copy-books that lay open on all the desks. Thirty or forty scholars of all ages were bending over their writing, quiet and busy; the master, as he passed among the writers, was the only sound. But, though silent, this little light, hot school room has its heroes and heroines as certainly as the wider sphere of life.

The bell rings for the writing to be laid by; and now comes the last exercise of the day, the spelling, in which nearly all the school joined. At the head of the class is a delicate little girl in a blue dress, whose bright eyes and attentive air show that she prizes her place and means to keep it.

Presently a word, which had passed all the lower end of the class came to Eunice. The word was privilege. "P-r-i-v-i-l-e-g-e," spelt Eunice. But the teacher, vexed with the mistakes of the other end of the class, misunderstood her and passed it. The little girl looked amazed; the bright color came into her cheeks, and she listened eagerly to the next person, who spelled it again as she had done.

"Right," said the teacher; "take your place."

"I spelt it so," whispered Eunice to herself, the tears springing to her eyes as she passed down. But, when she came to the master, who remained in her place, inwardly determining soon to get up again. But her trials were not yet over.

Many expedients had been tried in the school to keep out the arch enemy of all teachers—whisper. At length the following plan was adopted: The first whisperer was stood upon the floor in front of the teacher's desk. Here he acted as a monitor; as soon as he detected another he took his seat, and the next offender kept a sharp lookout to find some one to take his place; for at the close of the school, the scholar who had the whisperer's place was punished very severely—as the school phrase was, "took a furling!" This plan appeared to operate very well; every one dreaded being found last on the floor; and though it secured an orderly school, many of the parents and scholars doubted its justice.

The boy who was on the floor when Eunice lost her place was an unruly, surly fellow, who had smarted for his faults often before; and as school drew near his close he began to tremble. The instant Eunice's whispered complaints reached his ear his face brightened up; he was safe now. And when the class was dismissed he said, "Eunice whispered, sir."

Eunice rose, and in a trembling voice related what she had said; but the teacher saw no excuse in it, and she was called to take the place of the ungenerous boy who had told of her.

Books had been put away, and the waiting school looked on in sorrowfulness as Eunice left her seat to take the dreadful punishment. She was one of the best scholars—bright, cheerful, sweet tempered, and a general favorite. Every one felt that it was unjust; and many angry glances were cast at the boy who was ungenerous enough to get a little girl whipped. Overcome with fear and shame, she stood by the side of the desk, crying bitterly, while the teacher was preparing to inflict the punishment.

At this moment a tall boy stepped out of his seat, and going to the desk, said: "Are you going to whip Eunice, sir?"

"Yes, I never break my rules," the teacher answered.

"We will not see her whipped!" said the boy in an excited voice; "There is not a boy here, except that one, that would see her whipped! Whip me, sir, and keep your rules, if you must; but don't touch this little girl!"

The master paused; the school looked on fearfully.

"Do you mean to say you will take her punishment?" asked the teacher.

"I do, sir," was the bold reply.

The sobbing little girl was sent to her seat, and without finching, her friend stood and received the punishment that was to have fallen on her. The school was dismissed, and the boys paid him in admiration and praise for all he had suffered, while the grateful little girl blessed him from her heart for a noble and generous boy, who had saved her from the greatest shame and suffering.

I said the little school had its heroes—and this was one of them.

James Dixon, a Nashville fireman, has fallen heir to $150,000—$50,000 in cash, the balance in real estate. Wonder if he has any "kin" living?

THE EARLY PROFESSIONAL LIFE OF DANIEL WEBSTER.

Admitted to the Bar in his twenty-third year, he had just returned home to his father, and opened an office in a New Hampshire village near by, resolved never again to leave the generous old man while he lived. Before leaving Boston he wrote to his friend Binchard: "If I am not earning my bread and cheese in exactly nine days after my admission, I shall certainly be a bankrupt!" and so, indeed, it proved. With great difficulty he "hired" eighty-five dollars as a capital to begin business with, and this great sum was immediately lost in its transit by stage. To any other young man in his situation, such a calamity would have been, for the moment, crushing; but this young man, indifferent to money as to honor, informs his brother that he can in no conceivable way replace the money; cannot, therefore, pay for the books he had bought; believes he is earning his daily bread, and as to the loss, he has "no money sensations on that account." He concludes letter with an old song, beginning—

"Old dad, old dad, old dad,
I'll never make money myself."

In the New Hampshire of 1806 there was no such thing as a lawyer as we know it. The old country lawyer, who slowly acquiring it, a country lawyer who gained $1,000 a year was among the most successful, and the leader of the bar in New Hampshire could not earn $2,000. The chief employment of Daniel Webster, during the first year or two of his practice, was collecting debts due in New Hampshire to merchants in Boston. His first sign has been preserved to the present day, to attest his minuteness and privacy the humble expectations of his propriety.

"D. Webster, Attorney," is the inscription it bears. The old Court House still stands in which he conducted his first suit, before his own father as presiding judge. Old men in that part of New Hampshire were living until within these few years, who remember well seeing this tall, gaunt, and large-eyed young lawyer rise slowly, as though scarcely able to get upon his feet, and giving to every one the impression that he would soon be obliged to sit down from mere physical weakness, and saying to his father, for the first and last time, "May it please your Honor."

The sheriff of the county, who was also a Webster, used to say that he felt ashamed to see the family represented at the Bar by so lean and feeble a young man.

The tradition is, that he acquired himself so well on this occasion that the Sheriff was satisfied, and clients came, with their little suits and smaller fees in considerable numbers, to the office of D. Webster, Attorney, who thenceforth in the country round went by the name of "All-eyes."

His father never heard him speak again. He lived to see Daniel in successful practice, and Ezekiel a student of law, and died in 1806, peacefully old.

Daniel Webster practiced three years in the country, and then, resigning his business to his brother, established himself at Portsmouth the seaport of New Hampshire, there a place of much foreign commerce. Ezekiel had a most desperate struggle with poverty. At one time, when the family, as Daniel observed, was "heavily unprovided," we see the much-enduring "Zake" teaching an academy by day, an evening school for sailors, and keeping well up with his class in college beside. But these preliminary troubles were now at end, and the brothers took the places won by so much toil and self-sacrifice.—Mr. Parson in the North American Review.

TWO WAYS OF DOING A THING.

In the train from Harrisburg was a gentleman, Jack Tar in a go-shore outfit, jolly, genial and happy, with a decidedly pretty specimen of eighteen-year old crinoline, to whom he had been a week spliced, and was conveying Philadelphiaward. Opposite Jack and his wife were a couple that any one could see were on a honeymoon cruise, the bride all blushes, beauty and bashfulness, and the gallant bridegroom, all devotion and courtship.

At one of the stops, the careful bridegroom thus addressed his little bride: "My love, I am about to step out a few moments for refreshments. Do not be alarmed during my absence."

Gentleman Jack took the cue; and putting his wife on the shoulder, sung out, as if he were hauling the maintopgallant-yard in a gale of wind:

"Say, wife, I'm going ashore to wet my whistle; don't tumble aboard while I'm gone."

BEAUTIFULLY EXPRESSED.

The New Orleans Picayune, referring to the decision of the Supreme Court on military commission says: "This emerging of the Supreme Court above the atmosphere of partisan strife and tumultuous popular passions into the region of calm and unclouded justice, is the rising above the waters of the Ararat, on which the ark of the Constitution may repose in security. It is the herald of the good tidings that they, whom its broad roof shelters may begin, without fear of further floods, to turn their thoughts to the task of replenishing and adorning the beautiful earth that is restored to them."

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH—CENTRE COLLEGE.

Mr. Priest, the representative from Henderson county, has obtained leave to bring in a bill in reference to the Presbyterian Synod of Kentucky, recognizing the Synod which assembled at Henderson as the legal Synod and vesting in it the control of Centre College and other property and funds belonging to that body, any action of the Presbyterian General Assembly to the contrary being declared to have no legal effect.

David Parker, widely known as general manager of the Shakers at Canterbury, New Hampshire, who died on Sunday last, was born in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

David was put with the Shakers when a boy, and soon manifested those traits of character which early marked him as a born leader, and which early put him in place of trust. He was a man of extensive information, was well known throughout the country, and his loss will be felt by many of the "world's people," as well as by the society of which he was a member.

Advertising.

We said, the other day, that "the man who doesn't advertise his business advertises that he has none to advertise."

This wasn't said for the mere sake of epigrammatic point, but because it is to a very great extent true and is generally well received as truth by the community. A person who wishes to purchase articles goes where they are advertised as for sale, he doesn't think it worth his while to hunt around for them at random among dealers who, from not advertising them, are presumed not to have them. In all such cases the newspaper is justly regarded as the best business guide book.

Those who don't advertise at all or only to a very limited extent have failed to profit by the uniform experience of all men in business in all countries and in all times since the newspaper became an institution. The great lesson which experience teaches is evident from the fact that the amount of advertising increases not only with every generation but with every decade and every year. You will never hear a man complain of having advertised too much, but thousands daily confess their regret at having neglected so sure and obvious a means of profit.

Of all the numerous persons in the United States, who, during our long editorial life have distinguished themselves by the large extent of their advertising, we don't know of any one that has failed to amass a princely fortune. No doubt it required considerable nerve at first to venture upon the expenditure necessary to advertising largely, but the wisdom of the policy is so well established now that precious little nerve, if any, is called into requisition.

People abroad judge us by the standard of the advertising columns of our papers more than by any other. And thus it is and must will ever continue to be.

Occasionally you will find a man, a candidate for business, who will tell you that he doesn't advertise because he isn't making any money! What a strangely absurd reason! If a man isn't making money, let him by advertising, draw to himself the business whereby he can make it; and, if he is making a small or a large amount of money, let him advertise for the business whereby he can make more. Of all the thousands who advertise, we don't believe that any fail to profit by it. And we have had far better means of judging than most people.—Louisville Journal.

WHO IS SAFE?

God has never created a mind yet that can safely challenge combat with the appetite of drink. Earth has no ambition that is not engulphed, no hope which is not blasted, no tie which is not broken, no sanctuary which is not invaded, no friend, no kinsman, brother, wife, or child that is not forgotten; no fibre of human agony which is not wrung.

Minds of common mould will go through life without excess, while those gifted with God-like powers are written with weakness.

The gifted author of White Herod walked in fetters, and died at Missolonghi of a drunken debauch. He who led the prosecution in the British Parliament against Hastings, was hurried to the grave to escape the clutch of his landlady. Poor Charles Fox! And the author of Gertrude of Wyoming died a drivelling imbecile. How the "Gentle Elias" wept over the habit that enthralled him. Ah! how these tragedies of human individual history—of temptation and fall—stand before us! The history of the best minds of our land is darkened by these episodes of weakness and ruin.—T. M. Brown.

A JUG OF WHISKY AND WHAT CAME OF IT.

A fearful temperance sermon was enacted at the town of Caledonia, Racine county, last night. It seems that one Isaac Kittling, who is addicted to intemperance, left his house to get a jug of whisky of a neighbor, and having procured the same and imbibed freely thereof, started home. On his way he sat down on a log by the road, and went to sleep there, waking till morning, and then only to find that the log had been on fire all night, and that his legs were so terribly burned that amputation of both of them will be necessary to save his life.

GOOD ADVICE.

The editor of the Bucyrus Forum, in giving advice to his readers, requests that they content as long as their mouths are full and their bodies are covered; remember the poor; kiss the pretty girls; don't rob your neighbor's hen roost; nor meddle with his family affairs; never try to pick an editor's pocket; for he is generally "out of quads," nor entertain an idea that he's going to "stand treat."

We never drink, throw care and anxiety to the "dogs"—such as are now worn on the shirt collars, black your own boots, and be sure to take your own county paper and pay for it in advance.

A NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The National Democratic Association at Washington, held a meeting on the night of the 23d for the purpose of consulting upon the expediency of holding a National Democratic Convention at no very distant day. Resolutions were adopted recommending the city of New York as the place, and the 21st of May as the time for the meeting of a National Democratic Convention. Representative A. J. Rogers, among others, addressed the meeting.

JONES & SMITH have a few of those Silk Mixed Suits left, for $20; Business Coats, all wool, $12.00; Vests, $2.50 to $3.50; all wool Pants, $6.00.
At Cost.—It will be seen from their advertisement that R. T. Owen & Co., are closing out their stock at cost. They also very reasonably ask for a settlement of old accounts. Call and see them.
An Apology. This number of our paper will doubtless contain many imperfections and errors, caused by the removal of type and material to our new office. After we have become settled in our present quarters we will have many advantages which we have not possessed before.
TILTEREKA.—This is the title of a book soon to be published by W. E. Doyle, the Police Reporter of the Louisville Courier. That it will be rich, rare and rare, every reader of the Courier knows full well. Those who wish to laugh and grow fat, should get a copy of Tiltereka.
The fashions and follies of the times are touched up in a peculiar style.
PASS HIM AROUND.—That never tiring man, Dr. G. J. Stivers, Dentist 23 Main Street Shelbyville Ky., is proving to the people that he can extract their teeth without the slightest pain. He is having a perfect rush, twenty to twenty-five patients visit his office daily, all go away more than pleased. "You are the man to pull my teeth," is invariably their remark on leaving his office.
THE HISTORY OF MORGAN'S CAVALRY.—This work written by Col. Basil Duke is out, and is having a rapid sale. It is a book of nearly 600 pages, well written, and abounding in vivid descriptions of the war, and thrilling sketches pertaining to the renowned Cavalry of Gen. John Morgan. The price of the work is $4, and it can be had at the Book Stores in Shelbyville or at this office.
The day held sacred to St. Valentine approaches, and that it may be fully observed, Hastings & Hollenbach have brought to Shelbyville one of the largest, handsomest, and most exquisite variety of Valentines that has ever been seen in our midst. The cheap and droll, comic burlesque up to the costly, elegant and finished Valentine, embracing a wonderful variety, all can be seen at the establishment of H. & H.
We refer our readers to the law card of Jackson and Harrington of Louisville. Our friend J. D. Harrington has formed a co-partnership with Gen. W. L. Jackson, of Virginia, a confederate general, and an eminent and honored citizen of the old Dominion. Gen. Jackson was Lieutenant Governor of Virginia under Henry A. Wise, and has been honored in many ways by the State of his nativity. As one of the ablest criminal lawyers in the State, he has had a large, and constantly increasing practice. We congratulate our talented young friend upon his association in business with such an able and eminent lawyer. We recommend the firm to our friends.
JONES & SMITH will continue to sell their stock of goods actually at cost for two weeks. Persons wishing Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Ready Made Clothing, will do well to give them an early call. They are offering the following:
20 pieces, yard wide, Bleached Cotton at 25 cents per yard; 20 pieces, yard wide, Brown Cotton, 20 to 23 cents per yard; 20 pieces Calico, 12 to 15 cents per yard; 25 pieces Calico, 15 cents per yard; 10 pieces all wool Cassimere, $1.25 per yard; 50 pieces Dress Goods, 20 per cent less than cost; Table Linens, Toweling, Flannels, Jams, Linseys, White Goods, Laces, Hosiery, Gloves, &c., &c., at cost under.
PANORAMA.—Josiah Bliss, Sunday School Missionary gave one of his exhibitions at the Court-house last night. The scenes illustrated the progress of vice, in opposition to the better way, the way of morality and holiness. The impression made upon the minds and hearts of the large number of children present, we are persuaded will be lasting. Mr. Bliss presented the subject of a Monument to the memory of Rev. W. S. Sedgwick, who died in the Sunday School cause. It is proposed to receive from each child ten cents. We know the appeal will meet with a hearty response from the children who loved the devoted and self-sacrificing Sunday School Missionary, W. S. Sedgwick. Mr. Bliss will give an exhibition in the Representative Hall at Frankfort, on next Friday evening.

GREAT SALE OF WATCHES.

On the popular one price plan, giving every patron a handsome and reliable watch for the low price of "Ten Dollars." Without regard to value, and not to be paid for unless perfectly satisfactory.

500 Solid Gold Hunting Watches, $250 to $750;
 Magic Case Gold Watches, 200 to 500; 500 Ladies' Watches, Enamel, 100 to 300; 1,000 Gold Hunting Chronometer Watches, 250 to 300; 1,000 Gold Hunting English Levers, 200 to 250; 5,000 Gold Hunting Swiss Watches, 150 to 200; 5,000 Silver Hunting Levers, 50 to 150; 5,000 Silver Hunting Duplexes, 75 to 250; 5,000 Gold Ladies Watches, 50 to 250; 10,000 Gold Hunting Levers, 50 to 75; 10,000 Miscellaneous Silver Watches, 50 to 100; 25,000 Hunting Silver Watches, 25 to 50; 20,000 Assorted Watches, all kinds, 10 to 25.

Every patron obtains a Watch by this arrangement, costing but $10, while it may be worth $750. No part of the $10 is paid until the watch is received.

Messrs. J. Hickling & Co.'s Great American Watch Co., New York City, wish to immediately dispose of the above magnificent stock. Certificates naming articles, are placed in sealed envelopes. Holders are entitled to the articles named on their certificates, upon payment of Ten Dollars, whether it be a Watch worth $200 or one worth $750. The return of any of our certificates entitles you to the article named thereon, upon payment, irrespective of its worth, and no article valued less than $10 is named on any certificate. It is to be seen that this is no lottery, but a straightforward legitimate transaction, which may be participated in even by the most fastidious.

A single Certificate will be sent by mail, post-paid, upon receipt of 25 cents, five for $1, eleven for $2, thirty-three and elegant premium of $5, sixty-six and more valuable premium of $10, one hundred and more superb Watch for $15. To Agents or those wishing employment this is a rare opportunity. It is a legitimate business, conducted by the Government, and open to the most careful scrutiny. Try us! Address,
